One westbound lane reopens on U.S. 54/400 at Andover

One westbound lane of U.S. 54/400 has been reopened after being closed because of tornado damage in the Andover area.

Although one westbound lane is back open as of Monday morning, May 2, one of the westbound lanes of the highway remains closed: from Yorktown on the west to Meadowlark on the east. The length of the closed section has been reduced from what it had been over the weekend.

Westbound traffic is being directed to slow down.

Eastbound lanes in that section were reopened on Saturday after tornado damage Friday night.
