The National Weather Service in Kansas City/Pleasant Hill has issued a winter weather advisory for snow and sleet...which is in effect until 6 am CST Wednesday, December 9.

For areas along and southeast of a Kansas City to Marshall to Moberly line. Skies should remain generally cloudy overnight with a few patches of light snow or flurries possible. Little to no accumulation is expected. Dry air will likely limit precipitation during the day Tuesday as well...with areas of light snow or drizzle expected. Temperatures should warm to around freezing by afternoon but some freezing drizzle may be possible during the morning resulting in a few slick spots.

The greatest impact along and south of the Missouri River will likely occur Tuesday night as snow overspreads the area ahead of an approaching strong storm system. Snow may be briefly heavy during the evening hours, but accumulations will be limited by the forward speed of the storm. Areas from Kansas City to Marshall may see 2 to 4 inches of snowfall during the evening...with amounts increasing further north and west and decreasing toward the south and east.

After the transition back to snow, blowing snow and bitterly cold wind chills are expected late Tuesday night into Wednesday as strong northerly winds of 25 to 35 mph overspread the region. The blowing snow may greatly reduce visibilities, creating even more dangerous driving conditions. Temperatures will fall through the teens into the single digits Wednesday night with wind chill readings below zero.

Current Road Conditions

Snow and/or sleet continues to fall on and off throughout Northeast Kansas. Snow has fallen again in many Northeast Kansas counties and roadways have become slick and/or icy due to the added precipitation and dropping temperatures.

Snowfall amounts vary throughout the Northeast Kansas area, anywhere from 2 inches up to 13 inches the further north you head, and the snow fall totals may increase in some areas throughout the evening on Tuesday.

KDOT crews will continue to treat (with sand/salt mixture) and plow roadways throughout Tuesday evening and overnight into Wednesday. KDOT's daytime crews have headed home to rest while the nighttime crews are hitting the road to continue treating and plowing throughout the overnight hours.

KDOT ADVISES DRIVERS TO STAY HOME THIS EVENING AND STAY OFF THE ROADWAYS, IF AT ALL POSSIBLE. IF YOU MUST GET OUT, PLEASE FOLLOW THE DRIVER SAFETY TIPS LISTED BELOW.

Driver Safety Tips

For travel throughout today, drivers should use caution, allow plenty of driving time, buckle up (every passenger, every time) and be sure to turn on their headlights, and turn off their cruise control. Drivers should also provide for a safe distance or cushion between themselves and vehicles ahead of them.

We also want to remind drivers to stay a safe distance back from KDOT snow plows, and if drivers should pass the snow plows, to be extra careful and allow plenty of room as the trucks do travel slower than surrounding traffic.
